Victory to the Royal Dublin Hotel strikers

FOR NEARLY two months workers at the Royal Dublin Hotel in O'Connell Street have been on strike over pay and conditions.

Employees with years of training and experience are working for £2 to £4 per hour with an arbitrary overtime allowance of time and a quarter, no Sunday allowances, no sick pay, no maternity allowance and no pension plan.

The hotel trade in Dublin is booming and the Royal Dublin cannot get away with pleading poverty to avoid giving workers the most basic entitlements like a pension plan, sick pay, maternity leave and a minimum rate across the board of £5:50 an hour.

The bosses at Royal Dublin are some of the crudest anti-union busters seen in recent years, daring even to recruit scabs to take over strikers jobs.

These strikers are standing up and fighting the low pay scandal in Ireland.

They need the support of everyone who believes in fair play.

- Visit the picket line and express your support to the strikers;
- Organise collections in your workplace or union branch;
- Support the fundraising benefit at the Baggot Inn, Baggot St on Sunday 20th October.
